Transition Enquiries: euexitenquiries@tsi.org.uk

We will need:

- a. a short brief/background to the enquiry raised
- b. confirmation as to whether this will form advice that you intend to provide as primary authority advice

Check the published Government guidance first to see if your query can be answered from that

Check the content published on the Regulators' Companion to make sure that a similar enquiry will not provide you with an answer (<https://www.regulatorscompanion.info/eu-exit-technical-queries>)

Outline your initial thoughts on the potential answer and your rationale.

Supply an email and telephone contact number in case we need follow up information.

Query received:

We have received an enquiry from the UK representative of a company based in Germany who manufactures, verifies and supplies stamped capacity measures (1/2-pint, 1-pint glasses) for use in pubs and restaurants in the UK and Northern Ireland.

The enquiry is:

- Can the German manufacturer continue to CE mark the capacity measures until 31 12.2021?
- Are they required to mark the capacity measures with the UKCA mark /UKNI mark?
- Are they authorised to apply the UKCA/UKNI mark if they are based in Germany or is the verification to be carried out in the UK?
- If they are able to verify the capacity measures in Germany with the new UKCA mark what documentation are they required to keep?

Advice given:

- 1 – CE Mark
- 2 – Market
- 3 – UKCA Mark
- 4 – UKNI Mark
- 5 – Technical Documentation
- 6 – Importer Details
- 7 – Exemption

Scenario 1

A NAWI was submitted for a Module F conformity assessment to a GB notified body. It was marked with CE and the UKCA mark was on a document that has since been discarded or lost. This then means the instrument is in use with a CE mark and a four-digit GB notified body number on it. How can anyone tell if the rules have been applied correctly, especially in terms of enforcement?

Any questions?
